FOREWORD

This account of CIA and U.S. Government involvement in the Vietnamese generals' coup of 1 November 1963 is drawn from documentary sources. Not all of the documents summarized or quoted bear directly on the coup itself. We included some that may seem irrelevant, because they illuminate the atmosphere in which U.S. Government policy decisions were reached.

We interviewed only three people in the course of this inquiry: William Colby, Chief of FE Division at the time (and now); John Richardson, Chief of Station during the coup plotting of August 1963; and David Smith, Acting Chief of Station at the time of the coup/assassination of November 1963. Each assured us that he knew of no CIA assassination schemes against Diem--other than the role played by CIA in maintaining contacts, by direction, with the Vietnamese generals.

Many of the documents upon which this report is based are classified TOP SECRET. Since the report is being delivered personally and in only one copy, we have chosen not to subject it to the external accountability controls that are entailed in a TOP SECRET classification.

On the following page is a list of U.S. Government officials whose names are mentioned in the report, together with the positions they held at the time.

The successful coup against the Diem regime in South Vietnam, which resulted in the deaths of Ngo Dinh Diem and his brother, Nhu, began on 1 November 1963 at 1315 hours, Saigon time (0015 hours, Washington time).

This report on CIA and U.S. Government involvement in the coup consists of a chronological listing of events, actions, and deliberations having to do with Vietnam. The report is drawn entirely from documentary sources, either by quoting selectively or by summarizing. Significant overt happenings having bearing on official actions are included in the chronology. Facts on File, a weekly digest of world news, was used as the source for these historical events. Also included are a few excerpts from Marguerite Higgins' book Our Vietnam Nightmare* to demonstrate the extent to which some once-classified information is now common knowledge.

All dates are in 1963.

the commitment he has made to the Buddhists, disorders will probably flare again and the chances of a coup or assassination attempts against him will become even better. We do not think . . . the Communists would necessarily profit if he were overthrown by some combination of his non-Communist opponents. A non-Communist successor regime might be initially less effective against the Viet Cong, but, given continued support from the US, could provide reasonably effective leadership for the government and the war effort."

Current Intelligence Memorandum (OCI No. 2339/63): "Coup Rumors in South Vietnam"

" The coup reports and rumors which have arisen since the Buddhist crisis seem to reflect some serious coup plotting, but we have no firm evidence of advanced planning by any group to attempt to overthrow the regime. "

South Vietnamese troops and police attacked and occupied Buddhist pagodas throughout the country. Diem imposed nation-wide martial law.

Mr. Ball recommended that we continue to provide asylum for the two bonzes [Buddhist monks] until Lodge arrives and reviews the matter. It was agreed that official channels should not be made available for transmitting press dispatches by American reporters in Saigon. On the matter of possible alternate leadership in Vietnam, it was pointed out that there was no indication that Diem was not in full control.

Hilsman requested Hqs. send companion telegram to station pointing out that this is one technique to bring about surfacing of where and who real power is. Pressing this line can maximize possibility of obtaining US objective. Even if it does not succeed, it can substantially assist in identification of alternate or successor leadership with necessary drive, abilities and ambition, to incorporate in our overall contingency planning and serve as focus of buildup program. Hqs. will comment in further detail after seeing message, if necessary, but passes above at Hilsman's request."

Telephone call from Harriman to DD/P. Record by DD/P.

Mr. Harriman called Mr. Helms just before 2000 hours and outlined to him the substance of what eventually turned out to be Deptel 243 to Saigon. To Helms query, Harriman confirmed that the thrust of the telegram contained an implicit pull out of American forces and support if the Nhus' were not ousted. Harriman said that the message had been cleared "with Hyannisport," with the Secretary of State, and with Mr. Gilpatric.

The Department informs the Ambassador that the US government cannot tolerate a situation in which power lies in Nhu's hands. If Diem is unwilling to rid himself of Nhu, then Diem himself may have to go. The Ambassador is authorized: (1) to inform the GVN that actions against Buddhists must be redressed; (2) to tell key military leaders that the USG cannot support a Diem regime that includes the Nhus' and that "we will give them direct support in any interim period of breakdown central government mechanism;" (3) to make statements in Saigon removing the military taint on the pagoda raids. The telegram includes the following statement:

✓✓ "The Ambassador and country team should urgently examine all possible alternative leadership and make detailed plans as to how we might bring about Diem's replacement if this should become necessary. You will understand that we cannot from Washington give you detailed instructions as to how this operation should proceed, but you will also know we will back you to the hilt on actions you take to achieve our objectives."

25 August

Cable from Hilsman to Lodge (personal) sent via CIA channels (DIR 63854)

"State cable sent separately represents agonizing at highest levels. Course, outlined is dangerous but all agree that delaying clear cut US stand is even more dangerous. It won't be easy for you, but be assured we will back you all the way."

(Comment: This is a good point at which to break the narrative and insert a series of excerpts from Marguerite Higgins' book:

"The crucial act, with its overtones of Greek tragedy, opened with a cable. It was dispatched to Saigon late in the evening of August 24, 1963, a date made more significant because it was a Saturday. Washington usually empties on summer weekends or lapses into a somnolent mood as officials desperately seek relaxation.

"The telegram contained spectacular new instructions for the U.S. embassy in Saigon. It was drawn up at a meeting called by Under-secretary of State Averell Harriman and Roger Hilsman, Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern affairs and head of the Vietnam task force. The President's senior advisers were, for the most part, out of town. CIA Director John McCone was in California. Defense Secretary Robert McNamara was on vacation. Secretary of State Dean Rusk was attending a baseball game in New York. President Kennedy was at Hyannis Port. General Taylor says he knew nothing of the meeting until it was over and the telegram long on its way.

Senior People's only of City!

" . . . the cable proved historic. For the first time it gave the signal to 'unleash' the Vietnamese military, flashed a green light for the coup against Diem of which the generals had been talking for so many years.

" . . . the cable of August 24 was a radical revision of the previous philosophy of one war at a time. It envisaged the generals' making war on their own government, and with the implicit blessing of the United States.

"The substance of the cable was that the U.S. embassy was to make an effort to persuade Diem to fire his brother, release the Buddhist rebels, end press censorship, and restore other democratic liberties suspended under martial law. And if, as the cable anticipated, Diem would not do these things, then the embassy was to contact the Vietnamese generals and tell them that the United States would no longer stand in the way of a revolt.

" . . . the controversial August 24 cable was dispatched from Washington Saturday evening after being cryptically summarized to President Kennedy at the summer White House at Hyannis Port.

"The acting Secretary of Defense, Roswell Gilpatric . . . had the cable described to him over the telephone. Mr. Gilpatric says he was frankly surprised that such an important set of instructions should be rushed out on a weekend. But he did not feel that he ought to veto the telegram since . . . it had the 'approval of the President.'

"In McCone's absence, the cable was described, again cryptically, to Richard Helms, deputy director of the CIA, who also did not feel disposed to veto something 'approved by the President.'"

"FII CIA not consulted re cable being sent separately, which however cleared at highest levels. In circumstances believe CIA must fully accept directives of policy makers and seek ways accomplish objectives they seek. While have not seen exact text, understand it invites Lodge final judgment. Danger in present course of action appears to be throwing away bird in hand before we adequately identified birds in bush, or songs they may sing. Thus suggest a real search for courses of action which might retain options in our hands at same time as taking positive stand rather than waiting for situation to clarify (at which point we probably unable to affect it.) This boils down to seeking some middle ground for at least interim period."

"On balance, we believe the best hope for the preservation of US interests and attainment of US objectives in South Vietnam lies in the possibility of a coup d'etat by anti-Communist nationalists with sufficient military support to obviate prolonged civil war. Such a group might not prove able to salvage the situation and, indeed, might eventually prove no better than the present regime. Such a development would, however, enable the US and anti-Communist nationalist elements to make a fresh start unencumbered and unhampered by political errors of past years, months, and weeks. In such a fresh start, we believe, lies the only viable hope for the attainment of US interests and objectives in South Vietnam."

The President commented that we had been winning until August. Holting expressed his conviction that Diem is the only man who can run South Vietnam in any fashion to permit a continuance of the war effort. He believed we should make another try to keep Diem. Harriman directly disagreed with him. The President directed that a telegram be prepared to send to Lodge and Harkins asking their view of the chances of success, expressing concern over the unfavorable ratio of forces, and inviting their suggestions as to how we could increase their possibilities. ✓

Saigon Station's chronology of August 1963 coup activities

"At 0745 hours, Richardson, Spera and Conein, latter two of whom were scheduled to contact Generals Minh and Khien at 0815 same morning, were shown a message from General Taylor to General Harkins stating aspects of Vietnam situation being reviewed at White House and commenting that second thoughts were beginning in Washington. Faced with this information and given strictly limited time factors, Richardson decided that the meeting with General/s Minh and Khien should not be postponed but that contacting officers would make this meeting a fact-finding mission without encouraging or discouraging General Minh.

"When Spera and Conein returned from their meeting with Khien and Minh, we proceeded to Truheart's office to make our report. The Ambassador came in and Richardson advised him of our meeting with General Weede, of Taylor's cable, and of the decisions which Richardson had made as a result of the Taylor cable. Lodge was angry and expressed the view that Richardson's decision had destroyed the possibilities of carrying out a coup. Richardson expressed a firm dissenting opinion."

The consensus was that Harkins should confirm to the generals that the approaches from CIA were bona fide and represented the views of the US government. Rusk suggested we look at precisely what in the Vietnam situation made us think of a coup and what might be done to improve conditions in Vietnam. McNamara suggested the first requirement was reestablishment of communication between Lodge and Harkins. Rusk directed that a telegram be prepared for Saigon making suggestions as to what we might ask the GVN to do.

Chief, FE, who participated in the meetings of late August, in a memorandum for Walter Eider provided this summary of differing positions taken.

"In the discussions during the past week, the position of the Department of State, led by Ball, Harriman, and Hilsman, was that the Diem-Nhu government had double-crossed the US Government because of the attack on the pagodas and that US obligations to the government were no longer valid. Further, that a government so discredited could not conduct successfully the war in Vietnam and would prove an undesirable liability to the US Government elsewhere in Asia. Because of these moral, military and political conclusions, the Department recommended that it must give all support to a group of generals who allegedly were disaffected to the point that a clear indication of US action was the only ingredient lacking for them to push over a discredited, unpopular and weak Diem government.

"The position of the Department of Defense was that while it deplored the sensational aspects of the Buddhist situation, it nonetheless felt that an effort should be continued to deal with Diem and try to bring about a compromise, and at the same time to keep in touch with the generals and support the coup efforts, if this proved to be the only alternative left. This was essentially the view of General Harkins and of Ambassador Holting. This was considered by the Department of State to be a foot-dragging and weak position.

"The President viewed the State Department's position with considerable reserve but was willing to explore the coup idea further. He and the Attorney General (as well as CIA) were apparently appalled at the speed with which the State decision was reached on Saturday afternoon, 24 August, and felt that more thought, analysis and preparation should have preceded the instruction to Lodge."

CIA cable from Saigon (SAIG 0499)

"This particular coup is finished. . . . Generals did not feel ready and did not have sufficient balance of forces. . . . There is little doubt that GVN aware US role and may have considerable detail. . . ."

2 September

CIA cable from Saigon (SAIG 0523)

Richardson cabled a damage assessment. He concluded that Diem and the Nhu's are fully aware that the USG encouraged the generals to attempt a coup and that CIA was the instrumentality of this encouragement. He judged there was an even possibility that all major programs could go forward as in the past. He listed as a major dilemma the Station's future relationships with Col. Tung. He noted his dissatisfaction with Tung as a GVN liaison vehicle through which to conduct FM programs, but noted that the GVN had offered no alternative. Unless we were willing to discontinue our NVN, Laos border, and cross-border programs, we must continue to work with Tung.

The Times of Vietnam published charges that the CIA was plotting and financing a coup and was giving asylum to the chief anti-Diem Buddhist leader. The story was picked up and widely played by the New York Daily News, the Chicago Tribune, Baltimore Sun, and other prominent newspapers.

Rusk stressed the immediate need for direct contact between Lodge and Diem. Bundy pointed out the necessity of advising Lodge not to have a real show-down with Diem over Nhu at this forthcoming meeting, as one of Lodge's cables indicated he was headed very much in this direction. Rusk agreed to do this. The President agreed with the desirability of silencing Madame Nhu but expressed some doubt that Nhu's participation was as fatal as State seemed to say it was. Rusk commented that the country team had stated its feeling that Nhu must go, to which the President replied that they may have been operating under directives received from here.

Wire services and prominent newspapers carried a story that the Special Forces troops who raided the pagodas on 21 August were still being paid secretly by CIA. This story was attributed to a highly reliable source in Washington and gave details of support to Col. Tung in the amount of $3 million annually, and a payment of $250 thousand on 3 September. The story was datelined in Washington and in Manila.

David Bell warned in a television interview that the US Congress might cut back aid to South Vietnam unless the Diem government changed its policies.

(Comment: The U.S. Government publicly confirmed on 8 October 1963 that aid had already been cut, quietly and over a period of some months. Bill Colby, Jocko Richardson, and Dave Smith each told us that the public announcement of the aid reduction was a "signal" to the generals and that the reduction was planned with that in mind. It may be that the cut in aid was deliberately planned to spur the generals on, but, if so, that intention did not find its way into the written record. The nearest thing to it is in the record of a Presidential meeting of 10 September 1963. The President asked Rufus Faillips, of AID, what specific actions Phillips would recommend and he suggested "cutting aid to Colonel Tung which would be viewed by the Generals with much enthusiasm and as an indication of a vigorous American position." In general, though, aid cuts were discussed in terms of bringing pressure on Diem to make needed changes in his regime. However planned or however looked upon by the U.S. administration, it is clear that the Vietnamese generals considered the official confirmation of aid cuts as a clear token of U.S. support of their coup planning.

Spera and Conein met with Generals Minh and Khaiem on 29 August.

The following are excerpts from the cabled report of the meeting (SAIG 0406):

"If USA now really ready take different position, generals want firm evidence to that effect. . . . Queried as to what we can do to show we mean business, Minh flatly stated, stop economic aid to force Nhu to show his hand."

The suspension of aid did not force Diem and Nhu to mend their ways, but it did create an atmosphere that made it easier for the generals to assemble the military support needed for a successful coup.)

Gen. Krulak reported his findings in Vietnam. His conclusions were that the war is going ahead at an impressive pace and that the Viet Cong war will be won if current US military and sociological programs are continued. Mendenhall, the State representative who accompanied Krulak, expressed the view that there was a complete breakdown of the Saigon civilian government and the security situation in the provinces had deteriorated. The President asked whether the two gentlemen had visited the same country. Rusk suggested that the focus be on what happened in July and August that reversed the optimistic judgments in May and June. Mr. McCone talked from a personal telegram he had received from Richardson recommending against any cut in aid.

Bundy stressed the need to unify the US Government posture, to coordinate press guidance, and to control outgoing messages to Saigon. He emphasized the importance of following the President's guidance on this delicate Vietnam problem, despite intensely differing views as to what should be done, how, the risks, minimum objectives, and the facts. McConara stated that his position was vigorously against throwing out this government without seeing an alternative and that none appeared to exist. Mr. McCone commented that the problem was not so much the existence of an alternative as how to put one into power. Bundy summarized the President's position as one in which we must express our reservations as to the mistakes and misdeeds of Diem but not be in a position where we cannot deal with him further.

McNamara pointed out that Lodge has had little contact with Diem and has not been out of Saigon. Mr. McCone commented that he believed that we should move cautiously, that we should talk seriously to Diem and that Lodge should be urged to visit the countryside to obtain a more realistic view of the effects of suspending aid. Mr. McCone also suggested that another approach be made to Nhu to seek his cooperation in a departure. On the same day, David Halberstam stated that high US civilian officials in Saigon were making an all-out effort to convince Washington that the military and political situation is deteriorating. He said that "the Chief of the Central Intelligence Agency favors all-out support for the present regime but that almost all other members of his staff are embittered over the raids on the pagodas. We should not attempt publicly to achieve objectives with respect to GVN when probability of attainment is virtually nil. . . . We cannot covertly tinker with or engineer a coup unless general situation is reasonably propitious and if we are unable to establish necessary working contacts with Vietnamese leaders willing and able to do the job with necessary means. . . . The meeting was held to discuss matters that became the subject of Deptel 534 [see later entry of 5 October]. DCI said it was the opinion of CIA (with the exception of Colby, C/FE) that fiddling with the Commodity Import Program as a political lever would be much more likely to create an economic crisis undermining the war effort than to scare Diem and Nhu into a more cooperative attitude, because it would seriously affect the confidence and planning of the Vietnamese business community and quickly engender inflationary measures among the population at large of a more serious nature.

What was Colby's point?

It was the consensus of the meeting that some meaningful political movements had to be made, but exactly what they should be was not determined.

Memorandum for the Record prepared by the Executive Director following a meeting with Kenneth Hansen, Bureau of the Budget

At Hansen's initial meeting with Lodge, Lodge made these charges:

- (1) CIA was improperly dealing with Nhu; (2) CIA was reluctant to turn over to the military its operations among the hill tribes;
- (3) CIA had inadequate penetrations of the GVN and the Buddhists and was caught by surprise; (4) Richardson had a palatial mansion and entertained government officials there; (5) The CIA Station was too large and too visible; (6) CIA acted on its own initiative without coordination and without any control from either the Ambassador or Washington.

Hansen said he later reported to Lodge that he thought Lodge's charges were erroneous. He said he was convinced that everything CIA had done in Vietnam had been approved in Washington, coordinated with and carried out under the directions of the Ambassador, and had been carried out with both good judgment and a high quality of performance.

Hansen noted that at the time of his first meeting with Lodge, Lodge had not yet had a full briefing on what the Agency was doing. This took place a few days later.

1 November

The coup began at 1315 hours, Saigon time, which is equivalent to 0015 hours, Washington time, 1 November. The following account is drawn from several sources: the Saigon Station's history of the coup and various cables.

At 1315 hours, the Aide de Camp to General Don came to Conein's house, told him that the coup was in progress, and said that General Don wanted Conein at Joint General Staff (JGS) headquarters. The

We can neither confirm nor refute from the record.

Thus, Conein went to JGS headquarters and remained at the command post throughout the struggle. Before leaving his home, Conein alerted the station by radio. Upon arriving at JGS headquarters, Conein was told by General Don that Don had tried unsuccessfully to reach Conein earlier by telephone. A later check revealed that Conein's telephone was out of order. Conein was told that he was to keep a telephone line open to the Ambassador. Because there was a CIA officer on the scene and in intimate contact with the coup principals, the station was able to report almost minute-by-minute progress of the coup.

SECRET-EYES ONLY

The fact that Conein was at JCS headquarters is well known in official circles. On 24 October, headquarters had cabled the station: "In future do not repeat not put message re coup plots or rumors in CRITIC channel. Rather you should slug them IMMEDIATE ATTENTION FOR BRENT." As a consequence, the first cabled reports from the station came in as regular CIA cables and were put onto the CRITIC network here at headquarters. The first cable was received at headquarters at 0117 hours, Washington time, and was filed on the CRITIC network at 0159. At 0256 hours, following receipt of the sixth non-CRITIC cable, headquarters instructed the station to put the coup reporting on the CRITIC network at the station. Sometime during the day of 1 November (the confirmation copy of the cable lacks a date/time stamp) headquarters cabled a warning to the station against including the names of CIA personnel in its CRITIC cables. Conein is identified by name and as being at JCS headquarters in eleven CRITIC messages, seven of which were put into the CRITIC channel, without the name being deleted, here at headquarters.

At 1030 hours 2 November (in Saigon) the Saigon radio announced that both Diem and Nhu had committed suicide by taking poison. Later in the day General Minh said that Diem and Nhu escaped from Gia Long

- 42 -

Palace shortly after 0700 hours on 2 November by a tunnel unknown to the generals. They left the tunnel in the dock area and went to a Catholic church in Caolon where they took poison. They were discovered at the church at 1030 hours.

We do not have a truly reliable account of the circumstances of their deaths, but they certainly were not by suicide. According to one of Conain's reports, Diem called General Don at 0650 hours 2 November and offered to surrender unconditionally. General Minh immediately ordered all telephones removed from rooms in their JGS command post area. This cut off all communication with the outside except for radios under Minh's control.

On 16 November 1963 a field-grade officer of the JGS, who was deeply involved in the coup and whose reliability the station could not judge (nor did it name him), gave a station officer two photographs of the bodies of Diem and Nhu, which he claimed he had taken at the request of General Kim. The photographs show that the deaths were very bloody. The source gave the following account of the deaths:

The officer was present when the Military Revolutionary Committee debated the ultimate disposition of the brothers, accompanied the force that apprehended them, and witnessed the events immediately after their deaths. He was not present in the M-113 armored personnel carrier at the time of the deaths.

A lengthy argument took place on the night of 1-2 November as to the ultimate disposition of Diem and Nhu, with most of the generals favoring their execution. The ultimate decision was to kill them. A Captain Nhung was designated as executioner.

- 43 -

SECRET-EYES ONLY

[On the morning of 2 November, the Committee received a phone call from a casual informant telling where Diem and Nhu could be found. A force was dispatched to apprehend them. [This appears to conflict with Conein's report that the phones had been pulled out.] Shortly after 10:00 a.m., Diem and Nhu entered the personnel carrier with Captain Nhung.

Upon arrival at the JCS headquarters, Diem and Nhu were dead. Nhu had been stabbed 21 times in the back with a carbine bayonet and shot five times. Diem had been shot twice in the chest. Nhung leaped from the M-113 with the bayonet in hand and proudly displayed it to all observers. His arms were soaked with blood. [From the photos, it looks as if Diem and Nhu had their hands tied behind their backs.]

To recap:

- a. CIA was not in favor of the decision to abandon the Diem regime, but faithfully carried out instructions.
- b. CIA officers Conein and Spera were the contacts with the coup generals, but only as approved and under instructions.
- c. A CIA officer, Conein, was at the generals' command post throughout the fighting.
